worksheet · file 2 of 2

Your story brief, on one page

Fill the three boxes, then plan every beat as a card: the still, the time or label, the exact words, and what moves. Below are the real cards from both sites. Prompt 1 on the next page gets Claude to draft yours.

the one moment

The sentence a visitor says to a friend.

the device

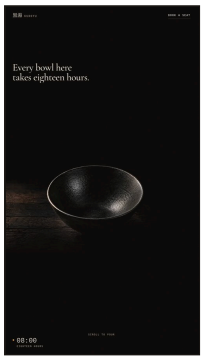

One thing that carries the page: a clock, a case file, a countdown.

the feel

Page colour, one accent colour, the type, and what it must never look like.

Kuroyu: eighteen hours, one bowl clock in the corner · the build film, 10 s (one of three clips)

08:00

"Every bowl here takes eighteen hours."

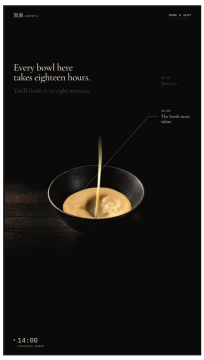

moves nothing yet: the empty bowl

08:00

"Bones in."

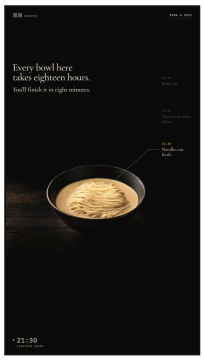

moves the broth pours

14:00

"The broth turns white."

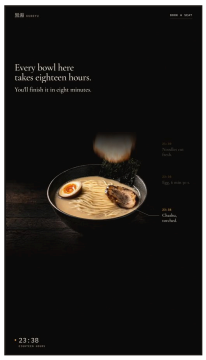

moves broth rises to the rim

21:30

"Noodles cut fresh."

moves noodles drop in 23:38

"Egg, 6 min 30 s."

moves egg, chashu, nori land

23:40

"Served."

moves steam rises, the film ends

The Hollow House: a case file you walk into police notes · film 1 gate to door, film 2 door to her face

31 October 1926

"The Hollow family hosted a dinner for eight."

moves fog drifts, the gate waits

11.41 pm

"The police found the gate open."

moves through the gate

the door

"So was the door."

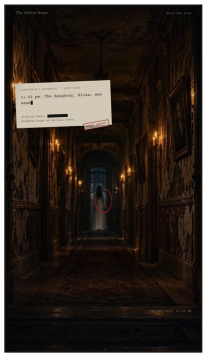

moves up the path, the door opens

11.47 pm

"The candles were still lit."

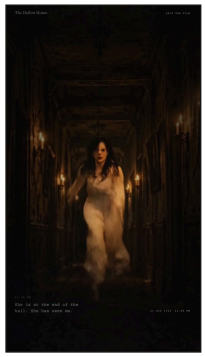

moves up the steps, end of film 1

11.52 pm

"The daughter, Eliza, was seen in the hall."

moves into the hall, candles go out

11.58 pm

"She is at the end of the hall. She has seen me."

moves she runs at you last card Always the booking. Kuroyu ends on "Your seat is still warm." and a Book a seat button. The Hollow House ends on "Case still open." and Book your night.

rule One device, one accent colour, text beside the film and never on it. If a card is not part of the story, cut it.

prompt pack

Six prompts in order, plus a walk-in version

Swap the words in [square brackets]. Prompts 1, 5 and 6 go to Claude in the Code tab. Prompts 2 to 4 (and 3b, 4b) go to Higgsfield. The full prompts for both sites are in docs/PROMPTS.md.

1 · the brief

Claude, Code tab

Help me write a story brief for a scroll website for [your business]. Ask me questions one at a time first. Then give me: the one moment a visitor would tell a friend about, one device that carries the whole page (like a clock or a case file), the feel (page colour, one accent, type), and every section as what happens → what moves → the exact words. Cut any section that is not part of the story. End with one call to action (book, buy or visit) and the details it needs. Then list every clip and still the page needs, with a filename for each. Save it as BRIEF.md.

2 · the hero still

GPT Image 2.5, the last frame

16:9. Photoreal editorial photograph of [the finished product, every detail you want seen], [camera angle], on [surface]. Single warm side light from the left, background falls off to near-black. The subject fills the middle 45 per cent of the frame with dark space on both sides. No props, no people, no text, no logo.

3 · the start still

GPT Image 2.5, hero attached as reference

Exactly the same photograph as the reference: identical camera angle, framing, lens, [subject] position and size, [surface], light and background. The only change: [the bowl is now completely empty and clean]. No text.

4 · the film

Kling 3.0, start + end frame, 10 s, Pro, sound off

Locked-off static camera, no camera movement at all. [The empty bowl fills itself], stop-motion style, no hands, no people. First [the broth pours in], then [the noodles drop in], then [the toppings land], finally [steam rises]. Photoreal, consistent lighting, smooth motion, no text.

3b · walk-in end still

GPT Image 2.5; here the start still comes first (prompt 2), attached as reference

Same [place], same light and colour grade as the reference, but the camera has travelled all the way up to [the front door], which now stands wide open in the centre of the frame, showing [what is inside]. Photoreal, film grain, no text.

4b · walk-in film

Kling 3.0, start + end frame, 10 s, Pro, sound off

One continuous slow steadicam dolly forward, no cuts. The camera glides through [the open gate], travels up [the path], and stops at [the front door], which slowly opens by itself, revealing [what is inside]. Photoreal, consistent light, no text.

5 · the build

Claude, Code tab, skill installed

/story-scroll Build a scroll website for [your business] from BRIEF.md and the clips and stills in this folder. Time every label to the frame its moment happens. Keep text beside the film, never on it. Then open it in Chrome for me.

6 · the jury

a new Code chat, same folder; paste its must-fix list back into the build chat

You are the executive creative director of an award-winning web studio, judging this site for Site of the Day. Do not edit any files. Open the website Claude built in this folder in a headless browser (Playwright). Record a video of a real scroll at 1440×900 and at 390×844, and save a screenshot every 200 px of scroll. Judge only what is on screen. Score it out of 10 for first impression, story, motion, typography, art direction, mobile, and would it win Site of the Day. Then list the must-fixes with exact values. End with SHIP or NOT YET.

order Brief, hero still, start still, film (check it one frame per second), build, jury. Repeat build and jury until it says ship. Both example sites took three rounds.
